

BYLAWS
INTERNATIONAL SOCIETY
FOR PHOTOGRAMMETRY AND REMOTE SENSING

BYLAW I - Name and Mission

The short title of the International Society for Photogrammetry and Remote Sensing shall be ISPRS with the motto “Information from Imagery” and these initials and motto shall be used on all Society publications and on flags, logos, stationery, etc. of the Society and its subordinate bodies.

BYLAW II - Definitions

The Society's scientific interests shall include the photogrammetry, remote sensing, and spatial information sciences and related disciplines.

Photogrammetry is employed for image-based three-dimensional measurements in mapping, engineering, heritage recording, forensic analysis, robotics, driver assistance systems, medical applications, computer gaming and other fields, where it provides geometric and semantic object information for populating spatial databases and for creating virtual reality scenes with real-life textured models.

Remotely sensed observations of the Earth from airborne and space-borne sensors, in synergy with in-situ and hand-held measurements, provide the basis for mapping human and natural activities; for physical and empirically based process monitoring; for assessing and mitigating disasters; for identifying and assessing non-renewable resources; for monitoring temporal changes in weather, land and sea cover; and for many other applications. Spatial and semantic descriptions of objects, features and processes are derived from one-, two- and three-dimensional (3D) measurements, and the interpretation of their electromagnetic and acoustic signal attributes using active and passive optical, thermal and microwave instruments and sounding devices.

Employing concepts and methods from spatial information science is an essential step in the process of obtaining useful information from images, since typically the description and location of objects and processes, as well as temporal relationships between these physical objects, need to be integrated with socio-economic and other data for analysis, simulation, prediction and visualisation purposes. Spatial information science deals with, for example, spatial data mining, interoperability and data integration, visual analytics, spatio-temporal perspectives on big data, visualisation and generalisation, the Internet of Things, social networks, and human-computer interaction. It is applied in transportation planning and management, urban and infrastructure planning, land and resource management, smart cities, disaster management, environmental monitoring, public health, security, and in understanding many other natural and anthropogenic processes and phenomena.

BYLAW III - Qualifications

The Society subscribes to the declaration adopted in 1958 by the 8th General Assembly of the International Council for Science (ICSU), concerning non-discrimination on the basis of politics, nationality, religion, race, or gender.

BYLAW IV - Activities

In addition to the activities in Statute IV, the Society may carry out all other activities incidental or conducive to the Society's aims, provided such acts do not contravene the Statutes or Bylaws of the Society or the laws of the country in which they are done, or the general principles to which the Society subscribes.

BYLAW V - Cooperation with Other International Organizations

This application shall be submitted at least four months prior to the commencement date of the Congress.
4. In choosing the Ordinary Member or group of Ordinary Members to be entrusted with the responsibility for the work of a Commission, the General Assembly shall take into consideration all relevant factors, including in particular:
