

Feedback Report: ISPRS Conference, Prague.

Before I begin sharing my experience of the conference, allow me to first thank Marguerite Madden and John Trinder for selecting me as a beneficiary of the TIF grant. If it were not for the grant, I doubt I would have been able to travel to the conference. The 400 $ awarded to me was used to pay off my accommodation for the duration of the conference and for that I am eternally grateful to the both of you as I believe that without the grants I would not have been able to pay for all the expenses of the trip. This TIF grant allowed me to embark on my first overseas trip and as a result, exposed me to varied cultures and beautiful scenery as I was travelling from one airport to the other. It is my prayer that God expands your territory and blesses you exceedingly in your future endeavors.

As a Masters student, I desire and aspire to become a PhD student and being surrounded by a diverse group of individuals, which range from Academics, Scholars, and Professors, all who converged for a common purpose proved to me that the possibilities are endless. The 7 days I spend attending the International Society of Photogrammetry & Remote Sensing (ISPRS) conference has really broadened my knowledge on how to improve on my research skills and how to use GIS and Remote Sensing to assist in providing solutions on how to efficiently and effectively manage public transportation systems in South Africa.

Engaging with other scholars was one of my highlights from the conference, as I had the opportunity to exchange knowledge, thoughts and experiences with other scholars coming from different backgrounds. The inputs I received during my presentation have really made a difference and have allowed me to bring in other elements into my research study that I would not have thought of. And I am thankful for that.

The overall experience I obtained during my stay in Prague, has created in me the desire to do more research in my field of study, which I hope in future will lead to discoveries of innovative ways on how to better my country. Attached are some of the captured memories from the conference. I hope to see you all at the next ISPRS conference, in France. Thank you once again and Happy New Year!!!
