

First Announcement and Call for Paper

DMGIS'99 -The Second International Workshop on Dynamic and Multi-Dimensional GIS

4-6 October 1999, Beijing, China

---

Workshop Themes

Conceptual and logical spatial data models
Multi-scale and multi-media representation
3D and 4D spatial data modeling
Digital Terrain Modeling (DTM)
Spatio-temporal databases
Spatial database revision
Dynamic data modeling
Web-based distributed and heterogeneous spatial databases
System integration
Spatial analysis
Others

Organisers

ISPRS Inter-Comm. Working Group IV/III.1 (GIS Fundamentals and Spatial Databases)
ISPRS Inter-Comm. Working Group IV/III.2 (Integration of image analysis and GIS)
ISPRS Working Group II/2 (Software and Modelling Aspects of Integrated GIS)
ISPRS Working Group IV/1 (Database Design and Spatial data access)
ISPRS Working Group IV/3 (Temporal Aspects and Topographic Database Maintenance)
ISPRS Working Group VI/3 (International Cooperation and Technology Transfer)
IGU Study Group on Geographical Information Sciences

Sponsors

International Society for Photogrammetry and Remote Sensing (ISPRS)
Natural Science Foundation of China
Chinese Academy of Engineering
State Bureau of Surveying and Mapping, China
National Remote Sensing Center of China

Submission of Extended Abstracts

The Organizing Committee of the Workshop invites extended abstracts of papers for consideration of being included in the technical program of the Workshop. The extended abstract should be 1,000-1,500 words in length in English, the official conference language. The digital form in Microsoft Word or Word perfect is required.

It is expected that selected papers from this Workshop will then be refereed for publication in an edited book.

Important Dates

Deadline for submission of abstracts April 15, 1999

Notification of acceptance May 15, 1999

Deadline for final manuscripts July 15, 1999=20

About Beijing

As one of the cities with the longest history in the world, Beijing is extremely rich in characters that attract visitors with all kinds of interest. It is not hard to fill a long list of big names of attractions such as the Great Wall, the Ming Tombs, the Forbidden City, the Summer Palace, and Temple of Heaven, plus colorful and relaxed lifestyle such as famous the Peking Opera, Chinese fine art and hand craft, and the art of Chinese cooking.

October is the best season in Beijing where there are various flowers and majestic scenery. The weather is sunny with warm days and cool evening. October 1, 1999 marks the 50th anniversary of establishment of the People's Republic of China, when Beijing will be in a grand festival mood with a lot of activities. We especially select the conference schedule during the National Day celebration to give our friends an unforgettable experience in Beijing.
